Odds in favor of local betting parlor

Mrs. Bolin, and her two children Joy and John, protested Tuesday night as the City Council of Carbondale met to discuss legalized gambling here in the city. The family carried signs to express their opposition to the proposed betting parlor.

The odds of having an off-track betting parlor in Carbondale increased Tuesday night as the City Council voted 4-1 to negotiate a proposal by Fairmount Park racetrack.

The Collinsville racetrack wants to open its parlor in University Place on the east side of town.

But members of Citizens for a Better Community told the crowd of nearly 200 people at the meeting that off-track betting will do more harm than good.

They demonstrated their views with signs saying "Just say no to legalized gambling" both before and during the meeting.

Larry Benson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Grayville, where Fairmount already has an off-track betting parlor, said the Grayville City Council made a mistake allowing a parlor to open in Grayville.

He said despite Fairmount did not keep its promises to Grayville. It did not bring as many jobs as it promised and is causing more cases of crime, alcoholism and prostitution than the than was reported to the Carbondale City Council.

"I do not believe off-track betting will put Carbondale in the winner's circle," Benson said.

Marcus Todd represented some Carbondale Cub Scouts when he said he did not want an off-track betting parlor in the city.

"We learn to be good citizens by looking at models," he said. "Is gambling a model of good citizenship? Be a city council a scout can be proud of."

John Ryan, a member of the task force organized by the council to study the effects a parlor would have on Carbondale, said after contacting most of the 11 task force members, they said they would not change their positions and endorsed the incentives in the proposal.

Student trustee regulations proposed by USG, GPSC

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Student government members proposed regulations for student trustees, despite disputed information from two legal counsels.

The guidelines, determined by a committee of Undergraduate Student Government and the Graduate and Professional Student Council members, will go to both governments for discussion.

USG Senator Michael Parker, committee member, outlined recommendations for trustees. The guidelines include:

■ A 2.25 grade point average for undergraduates and a 3.0 GPA for graduate students to be eligible for election;

■ While in office, the trustee should remain at least a half-time student in good disciplinary standing;

■ The trustee must officially be enrolled as student.

Parker said the requirements are only guidelines and cannot be considered official, because neither student government nor the Board of Trustees has the authority to remove the student member of the board.

"We would be misrepresenting ourselves if we

U.S. Forest Service cancels timber cutting in Shawnee

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service has cancelled timber cutting on a 60-acre tract in the Shawnee National Forest in Southern Illinois because of concerns expressed in an environmental impact analysis.

Shawnee Forest Ranger Tom Neal said the environmental analysis for Alexander County's Burner Hill area in the southwest portion of the forest was determined unsuitable for clear-cutting by Regional Forester Floyd "Butch" Marita early this week.

Neal said Marita's decision includes cancelling five clear-cuts ranging from 10 to 17 acres each and totaling a 60-acre section of the entire 561-acre Burner Hill plot.

By law, forest rangers are required to assess the potential environmental damage before allowing any trees to be removed from a national forest.

Groups, like the Sierra Club, have urged the government to ban all clear-cutting in Shawnee.

Environmentalists contend clear-cutting encourages erosion and leaves behind an ugly landscape of tree stumps and other debris.

Forest managers say clear-cutting controls insect infestation, protects wildlife and gives smaller or more valued trees more room to grow.

"We understand that there is a visual concern with clear-cutting and we decided a long time ago that we wouldn't use it unless there are some good reasons why the

Forest Service might need to use the method," Neal said. "In Burner

Senate approves gulf war money bill

Allies not meeting financial pledges may face arms ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved up to $15 billion Tuesday to defray the cost of the Persian Gulf War and voted a ban on the sale of U.S. arms to coalition allies that have not met their financial pledges for the conflict.

The legislation was approved 98-1 and sent to conference with the House but could run into trouble with administration concerns over language designed to slow the arms flow to the Middle East.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., voted against the bill and Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., was absent.

The $15 billion in U.S. taxpayer money is part of a $42.6 billion financing package for the war, with foreign contributions making up the difference. None of the American money can be used if foreign funds are available.

The bill includes a ban on the sale or transfer of arms to any nation that pledged to contribute money but has not yet paid its share.

Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and Hatfield, the ranking Republican on the panel, said nations that pledged money to the war effort had paid less than half of what they promised.

But White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said, "They are paying. We expect all of the pledges to be met."

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said at hearing, "I have no reason to doubt the motives of the coalition. To date our allies in this venture to finance the war have done very well by us. ... We have no reason to believe they won't come through on it."

Soviet referendum supports preserving union

MOSCOW (UPI) — Election officials released figures Tuesday showing vast support for preserving the Soviet Union, and a senior aide to President Mikhail Gorbachev hailed the result of the weekend referendum as a mandate for his reform policies.

The partial figures provided by Vladimir Orlov, chairman of the government's central referendum commission, showed that significant anti-union sentiment in the largest Soviet cities was overcome in the impoverished

Central Asian republics and other remote areas of the giant country.

Gorbachev's bitter rival, Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin, also claimed victory from Sunday's plebiscite with 71.09 percent of voters supporting creation of a post for a popularly elected president in his dominant republic.

Orlov told deputies 77.3 percent of the voters cast pro-union votes, with just more than two-fifths of 136 million ballots counted. He said 76.4 percent of 178 million eligible voters participated in the

Grigory Revenko, Gorbachev's point man for the referendum, told reporters: "The answer is yes to the policies initiated in 1985, to the policies of democratization and greater reliance by the leadership on the will of the people."

The plebiscite's partial returns indicated Gorbachev fulfilled his aim of laying claim to popular support without having to face direct elections. The Soviet Communist Party's ruling Politburo made him general secretary in March 1985 and the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies chose him as president a year ago.

The referendum asked: "Do you consider essential the preservation of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as a renewed federation of sovereign republics with equal rights, in which the rights and freedoms of a person of any nationality will be guaranteed in full measure?"

Revenko acknowledged that the

Salukis meet Stanford in round three

Salukis fans stood in lines outside the ticket office in Lingle Hall all day Tuesday to get tickets to the Dawgs NIT third-round matchup against Stanford Thursday night in the Arena. Tickets will go on sale again today beginning at 9 a.m.

Tickets for Dawgs' NIT game Thursday night going fast

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Fans stormed the Lingle Hall ticket office all day Tuesday to get their tickets for the Salukis' third round game of the National Invitational Tournament.

The Dawgs meet the Stanford

Cardinal at 7:30 Thursday night in the Arena and the tickets are going fast, said Ticket Control Supervisor Lee Trueblood.

The ticket office began selling the NIT tickets at noon Tuesday to season ticket holders only. Students can begin buying tickets at noon today at the Lingle Hall ticket office and at the ticket office in front of the Arena.

A line halfway down the sidewalk in front of Lingle Hall persisted most of the day as people waited in line for tickets. Parking became a problem as many people wanting tickets

Everything is set and ready to go for the Salukis as they head into the third round of the National Invitational Tournament.

The Salukis (18-13), who practiced behind closed doors Tuesday, are playing with a lot of confidence and possibly the best basketball all year, the only problem is they don't know who they are playing.

They know the Stanford Cardinal is coming to Carbondale Thursday to play in the Arena at 7:30 p.m., but they don't know much more than that.

Coach Rich Herrin is brushing up on their next opponent, but many of the players know very little about Stanford.

"The coaches may know something, but I really don't know much personally," junior forward Kelvan Lawrence said. "I imagine we'll attack them the same way we've played all year."

Senior guard Sterling Mahan said he didn't know a whole lot about the Cardinal, but he knew they had a force underneath the basket. That force is 6-foot-9 junior center Adam Keefe.

Keefe is a two-time Pacific-10 All-Conference honoree who averages 21.6 points and 9.6 rebounds a game for Stanford.

He has sparked the Cardinal to a 17-13 season and a share of fifth place in the PAC-10. He is a key to Stanford's dominance on the boards. Only six opponents have outrebounded Stanford this season and their +9 rebound margin is third in the nation.

Stanford is in post-season play for the fourth straight time, this being its third NIT appearance in four years. The Cardinal advanced to the third round of the tournament with a victory over Houston in the first round 93-86 and a second-round victory over Wisconsin 80-72.

Along with Keefe, Stanford will have 6-foot-7 Andrew Vlahov (10.8 ppg., 5.9 rpg.) and 6-foot-7 Deshon Wingate (9.6 ppg., 6.9 rpg.) working the boards. Running the offense will be 6-foot-4 John Patrick (9.5 ppg., 2.4 rpg., 3.8 apg.) and 6-foot-3 Kenny Ammann (11.1 ppg., 1.6 rpg.).

The Salukis shot into the third round in the NIT with a 75-74 first-round win at Boise State and a 72-69 nail-biter at Southwest Missouri State.

Winning on the road hasn't been easy for SIUC this season, losing 10 contests in opponent's arenas. The Dawgs put an end to their road woes in the NIT, but won't complain about coming home to play Stanford.

"We've been waiting for a home game," Lawrence said. "We thought we would get one in the second round, but we didn't. This one will really help our chances of getting to the final four."

"After a 2-10 year on the road this helps our confidence a lot. We're going to have a lot of confidence going into the game Thursday."

The Salukis have also corrected their problem of winning close ballgames. After dropping 12 games by six points or less, SIUC has taken two squeakers in the NIT.

"All year long we've had things go against us late in games and it feels good to have things falling in place for us now at the right time," Mahan said.

"We're feeling pretty good," he said. "We're playing with a lot of confidence right now and we're playing much better as a team."

Women's track places first at New Orleans

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC women's track team is off and running this spring.

The Salukis outdistanced their closest competitor, Southern University at Baton Rouge, to win the University of New Orleans Track and Field Classic by 28 points. Tulane University finished third.

Southern had several stars, but none shone as bright as Jennifer Bozue, who was named the Outstanding Field Performer for the meet.

Bozue placed first in the discus and third in the shot put. Her discus throw of 140-7 was a personal best.

Other Salukis who turned in outstanding performances were Nacolia Moore, who placed first in the triple jump and fourth in the 100 meter dash and Cheryl Evers, who took second in the discus and shot put.

Southern swept the 3,000 meters, with Lecann Conway, Amie Padgett and Karen Gardner finishing in that order.

The Salukis also received first-place performances from Jamie Dashner, Dawn Barefoot and Amy Bullinger, who set a meet record in the 400-meter hurdles.

The team also performed well at the Southwest Louisiana State Relays, which was an unscored meet.

At the relays, the Salukis competed against five other teams. Also included in the meet were some athletes that were not affiliated with colleges.

While the meet was not scored, Saluki head coach Don DeNoon said it was clear who would have been the winner.

"If the meet had been scored," DeNoon said, "we would have had twice the score of the second-place team."

Evers turned in another great showing, winning both the discus and the shotput.

In the 3,000 meters, Conway and Padgett tied for first and Barefoot placed second in the 1,500 meters, even though she had been sick for two days.

Coach DeNoon said he was very pleased with the team's effort.

"The trip provided us with great competition," DeNoon said, "but we were certainly the best team at both meets. It was the best spring break trip we've ever taken."

Men's golf ties for sixth in tourney

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

When the weather gets hot, so does the SIUC men's golf team.

After spending a week in the sun at Daytona Beach playing golf, the team tied for sixth place with Miami Dade North in the Palm Coast-Embry Riddle Intercollegiate Tournament.

Out of over 20 schools, more than half of them from the south, this is by far the best the team has done on its spring break trip coach Lew Hartzog said.

"We have never finished better than 14th down there except for this year," Hartzog said. "I think we were just a bit more ready to play and taking into consideration the southern teams that played in the tournament, I think we did exceptionally well."

Individual scores varied, with senior Mark Bellas tying for seventh with a 72-75, bringing him to a 147 overall. Junior Sean Leckrone placed 17th with a 73-76 for a total of 149.

"Although it remains to be seen, I feel we have benefitted from it (the trip) and we'll be ready for the rest of the season," Hartzog said.

The week before spring break in their first match of the season, the Salukis placed 15th out of 18 teams in the New Orleans Classic.

"I was not too unhappy with the way we played, it being our first tournament of the season," Hartzog said. "And if we could have used the scores of our two players who played as individuals, we would have tied for sixth place."

"So you see, we played well, it was just a matter of how things turned out for us."

The Salukis will play in the Second Annual Southwest Missouri State Co-Ed Collegiate Tournament Monday and Tuesday.

Netters drop four on spring tour

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team hopes to bounce back after a rough trip during spring break.

The team travelled through the South to face Tulane, Southwest Louisiana, Samford and South Alabama. Unfortunately, the Salukis dropped all four matches.

The closest match the team was involved in was its first against Tulane. Though the Salukis lost 5-4, coach Dick LeFevre said the score doesn't indicate how close the match was.

"We had four match points at Tulane," LeFevre said, "that could have made the match 6-3 in our favor. We just didn't win those points."

Winners for the Salukis at Tulane were Joe Demeterco, who won his match 6-2, 7-6.

Tim Derouin won his match 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 and Danny Gonzalez took his match 6-3, 6-1.

The No. 2 doubles team of Rikard Stenstrom and Jay Merchant won their match 6-3, 6-3.

Despite the team's record, some players a good job, LeFevre said.

"Jay Merchant was our unknown," LeFevre said, "but he was our own player to win at Samford. Tim Derouin also played well."

Merchant finished the trip at 2-2 and he and Stenstrom were undefeated in doubles play.

Coach LeFevre added that he wasn't too concerned with the team's record this early in the season.

"We try to play teams we think we can beat us," LeFevre said. "Our main objective is to try to get our players to peak out at conference tournament time."

The team travels to Champaign to play the University of Illinois Friday.

Hundreds killed by cholera in Peru; U.N. aid requested

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. disaster relief organization said Tuesday that 382 people have died of cholera in Peru and called for urgent medical assistance from international organizations. The agency said a cholera epidemic struck the country recently and nearly 70,000 Peruvians were hospitalized, 382 of whom died. It said the regions of Lima, Callao, La Libertad and Arequipa are hardest hit. "The proportion of deaths in relation to cases remains stable thanks to continued treatment and control as well as public response to health education programs."

Keating 5 senator waives rights to hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., has decided against new ethics committee hearings into influence-peddling allegations, but will submit more written information before the panel decides whether he acted improperly and requires punishment, the committee said Tuesday. The panel set an April 8 deadline for Cranston to produce a written response to its resolution that he likely violated the Senate's general standard against improper conduct in contacts with federal bank regulators on behalf of a major contributor Charles Keating.

Recession yet to bottom out—economists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a massive leap in the number of new homes being built and indications that consumer confidence may be on the rebound, analysts said Tuesday the nation's economy may not yet have hit bottom. "The ingredients for recovery are beginning," said Michael Niemira, an economist at Mitsubishi Bank in New York. "But the bottom of the recession is not yet at hand." New reports issued by the government offered a mixed view of the economy, with inflation at the retail level — measured by the closely watched consumer price index.

AIDS group wants patent on drug revoked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An AIDS group announced Tuesday it had filed a lawsuit seeking to revoke the patent for AZT in the hopes of getting less expensive versions of the only government-approved drug for the deadly disease. The People with AIDS Health Group of New York filed the suit Monday in federal court against the Burroughs Wellcome Co. The suit claims the company did not "conceive, develop, or demonstrate the utility" of AZT, failed to name the inventors and withheld information from the U.S. Patent Office in winning the patent.

Peoria police suspend two for excessive force in arrest

PEORIA (UPI) — Two police officers in Peoria have been suspended for 60 days without pay for allegedly beating a man during an arrest last month. Police Chief Keith Rippe said the penalties, which the men began serving Monday, are the most severe in years in his department. The chief said an investigation found the men "used excessive force" in the arrest Feb. 25 of Terry Stephens of Peoria. Stephens said he was beaten by officers because he was a homosexual. The officers are Dwight Borneman, a 12-year veteran, and Jack Baize, who has worked there seven years.

UI conflict opens Simon's eyes to problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paul Simon says the recurring conflict over Chief Illiniwek has opened his eyes to the problems of Native Americans. Simon, in his weekly newspaper column, said he has "long been casually interested in the problems faced by Native Americans ... But I have devoted little time to the Indian cause. That changed more than a year ago." Simon, a Democrat, said he was amazed by the reaction when it became known he had signed a petition urging the University of Illinois to change its symbol — Indian figure Chief Illiniwek.

Preliminary testimony offered in murder trial

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

Pablo Kenner pleaded not guilty Tuesday morning at a preliminary hearing to four charges of first degree murder in connection with the Feb. 16 death of Weldon Bruce Scott.

If Kenner, a Carbondale resident jailed since his arrest, is found guilty on the first of the four charges, the penalty could be death, said presiding Judge Kimmel.

At the hearing in the Jackson County Jail courtroom, Carbondale Detective Donald T. Barrett testified to an interview with Joe Wimberly, a witness at the scene.

Barrett said Wimberly told him he watched Kenner make a thrusting motion similar to pitching a baseball and struck Scott in the chest in a makeshift bedroom in Scott's home at 210 E. Green St. But he did not report seeing a weapon in Kenner's hand.

Barrett said Wimberly told him everyone was drinking and Kenner and Scott cursed at each other for 20 to 30 minutes. Wimberly told Barrett that he thought Kenner was getting up to go to the bathroom after it stopped. Wimberly said Eunice Higgins, Kenner's girlfriend, tried to get between the two when Wimberly saw the pitching motion.

Barrett said Wimberly told him Scott, after being hit, took a couple of steps backward and fell to the floor. He said Kenner then left the room through the kitchen.

Challenged on the validity of Wimberly's testimony, Barrett said Wimberly told him he only had two small drinks of wine that morning.

Carbondale Police Detective Randy Corey testified that no weapons were found on anyone at the scene. From the knives recovered from the house, none were identified as the murder weapon and no blood was found on the knives.

Corey also said no fingerprints were found on Scott's body.

Bruce Scott's death was followed by a fire later that day at the same address. Scott's housemates, Hershel Scott and Willie Rosemand, were found dead after the fire was extinguished.

COLA wants compensation for department loss

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate voted Tuesday to consider restoring positions in the College of Liberal Arts.

COLA is asking for more faculty positions as well as compensation for funds lost when the Department of Computer Science, founded by COLA in 1972, was moved in July 1990 to the College of Science, COLA Dean John Jackson said.

"I am trying to get some consideration of compensation of some kind for the investment my college put into the Department of Computer Science," Jackson said.

The department received $964,000 for operational costs in 1990, he said.

Philip K. Davis, chairman for the senate budget committee, said

COLA asked his committee to review the college's right to compensation and consider supporting their efforts.

"The College of Liberal Arts feels like it put a lot of resources into the computer science program which it could have invested in other departments," Davis said.

Davis said the transfer of departments usually does not have a large impact on colleges, but because computer science has been a growing field it required greater funding and increased faculty staff.

The senate is the first University-wide group to support considering compensation, Jackson said.

Jackson said the senate's support will help in negotiations with Benjamin Shepherd, vice president of academic affairs and research.

Senate members opposed to the compensation argued expansion funds were given to COLA for developing computer science so no further compensation is needed.

In other business, the senate committed faculty to initiatives that attract qualified minorities, women and the disabled.

According to the statement "the faculty of SIUC is committed to initiatives that attract qualified minorities, women and the disabled."

State would benefit with prison openings

ALTHOUGH GOV. JIM EDGAR'S budget proposal hinges on slashing costs in most funded programs across the state, the request to delay the openings of state correctional centers needs to be reconsidered.

Edgar's budget would cut $500 million in state general revenue funds. Many recipients of funding, including medical services and local governments, will be forced to cut their spending if the budget goes into effect.

But the Department of Corrections has a unique problem under Edgar's proposal. While the proposal would give prisons an extra $10 million for fiscal year 1991 in addition to its $562.7 million budget, the Illinois Department of Corrections asked for an additional $44 million.

THIS PROPOSED BUDGET INCREASE, however, will not even cover costs of the Robinson and Taylorville prisons opened last year.

And the proposal suggests that the opening of correctional centers in Southern Illinois will be postponed for six to 12 months.

The building and development of four prison work camps in Du Quoin, Paris, White Hall and Clayton, as well as the Big Muddy River medium security prison near Rend Lake, will continue, but they will not open when completed.

CURRENT PRISON CONDITIONS and the job market only can be adversely affected by these delays.

For instance, the St. Clair County Jail, with a 338-person capacity, holds 425 people.

Correctional centers throughout the state expect 1,000 prisoners by July 1 of this year and an additional 4,000 are expected by June 30, 1992.

Because overcrowding conditions in prisons exist across the state, additional facilities would ease this existing pressure.

THESE FACILITIES ALSO WOULD provide badly needed jobs in the area. The Big Muddy penitentiary will employ around 400 people while each of the other four centers will provide around 75 jobs.

Jobs especially are needed after the expected 300 layoffs within the Department of Corrections by June 30, which mostly affects parole officers.

Also, two youth centers in Pere Marquette and Kankakee are expected to close in June, which leaves 87 people without work.

NEW CORRECTIONAL CENTERS are not the only answers to criminal punishment. For instance, work-release programs would allow prisoners to perform public service work outside the institution.

However, both the crowded prisoners and the state would benefit if these centers were opened as soon as possible if only as temporary assistance while other solutions are explored.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letter that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Los Angeles police chief offers pathetic justification for beating

The police chief of Los Angeles is being widely condemned because of the now-famous videotaped flogging of a traffic offender.

But Chief Daryl Gates, while refusing to resign, suggests that the brutal beating might have been an uplifting act that could bring long-range positive results for the beating victim.

As the chief put it at a press conference Monday:

"We regret what took place. I hope he (the beating victim) gets his life straightened out. Perhaps this will be the vehicle to move him down the road to a good life instead of the life he's been involved in for such a long time."

I hadn't thought of it that way, but there could be something in what Chief Gates says.

There's no doubt that Rodney King, 25, hadn't been an exemplary citizen, although he's no John Dillinger. When the police stopped him for speeding, he was on parole for using a tire iron to threaten and rob a grocer.

But as Chief Gates said, the experience of being beaten, kicked and shot with an electric stun gun might be what it takes to "move him down the road to a good life."

Who knows, in a few years, when all of this is forgotten, a reporter might drive out to a nice house in a California suburb and find a peaceful Rodney King pushing a mower across his lawn.

The reporter might ask: "Mr. King, what is it that moved you down the road to a good life?"

"That's a good question," Mr. King might reply, "and I'll be glad to explain it to you. You'll have to excuse me if I wobble and drool a bit; my face has nerve damage and my coordination hasn't been the same since they damaged my brain."

"Of course."

"But to get back to your question. I think it was after L.A.'s finest hit me about 50 or 55 times with their clubs. As you recall, some of the fillings flew out of my teeth and one of my eye sockets sort of exploded."

"Must have been a tad uncomfortable."

"Yes. And at that point, I'm pretty sure that those nine skull fractures and internal injuries had already occurred, my cheekbone was fractured, one of my legs was broken, and I had this burning sensation from being zapped with that electric stun gun. I was feeling kind of low."

"That's to be expected."

"Right. But as I was lying there, and they were getting in a few final kicks, and then sort of hog-tying my hands to my legs and dragging me along the ground, I said to myself: 'Why not try to look at the bright side?'"

"And did you?"

"Yes. I thought: 'Well, one of my legs isn't broken; one of my eye sockets isn't fractured; one of my cheekbones isn't broken. And although my skull is fractured, my head remains attached to my body; and while fillings have popped out of my teeth, I still have the teeth.' And I said to myself: 'Half a body is better than none.'"

"Very inspiring."

"Thank you. And I had a chance to think about why the police were treating me that way. It was their way of telling me that speeding is an act of anti-social behavior and I had been very bad, bad, bad."

"You have unusual insight."

"I try. And I thought that if only I had led the life of a model citizen, this wouldn't have happened to me."

Let's face it, the L.A. police never fracture the skull of the president of the Chamber of Commerce, the chief antler in the Loyal Order of Moose, or the head of the PTA.

No, it was my past history of anti-social behavior that brought it on."

"But they had no way of knowing you were on parole."

"Yes, but I'm sure they could guess just by the look of me. Be honest, I don't look at all like the head of the PTA, do I?"

"True."

"Then, later, when Police Chief Gates said that the beating, although regrettable, could be the vehicle that would get me on the road to the good life, everything became clear. I realized that the beating would turn my life around and be a one-way ticket to the good life."

"The chief's words inspired you?"

"Not exactly. To be honest, Chief Gates' words convinced me that he had to be as dumb an S.O.B. as ever opened his mouth at a press conference."

"But you said he helped you to a good life."

"That's right, he did."

"How?"

"When I took his police department to court, that jury awarded me a couple of million in damages, and I've been leading the good life ever since."

"I don't think that's what the chief had in mind."

"I don't think that chief had anything in mind."

MONEY, from Page 1

The pledges total $54.5 billion, easily more than is needed, but only $25.6 billion has come to the U.S. treasury with another $3 billion due from Japan next week.

"I do not recall any hesitation whatsoever on the part of the United States in deploying the heart and brains and muscle of our military establishment to the Saudi Arabian peninsula and its adjacent waters," Byrd said. "There was no delay ... and so it is just a little more than disconcerting to see this kind of stalling by those countries whose defense we took up with no questions asked."

"Both talk and promises are cheap," Byrd said. "We made the decision to go to war and have, as a nation, reconciled ourselves to the inevitability of the terrible human costs," he said. "But it would be totally unbearable and unacceptable if we were also made to bear the bulk of financial costs as well."

Hatfield singled out Kuwait and Saudi Arabia and said these nations "have the capability to make good on their pledges. It is not going to make one Saudi to go hungry, one Kuwaiti to go hungry."

Byrd said the latest figures showed that of the $54.5 billion pledged, $25.6 billion, or 47 percent, has been paid.

Specifically, Byrd said, Saudi Arabia pledged $16.8 billion and paid $6.1 billion; Kuwait pledged $16 billion and paid $5.5 billion; the United Arab Emirates pledged $4 billion and paid $2 billion; Germany pledged $6.6 billion and paid $4.6 billion; Japan pledged $10.7 billion and paid $7.3 billion and Korea pledged $38.5 million and paid $71 million.

One of three provisions in the bill that has given the administration concern on constitutional grounds, according to Hatfield, would ban the sale of the U.S. arms to any nation that has not fulfilled its pledge.

"If a country has the money to buy expensive new weapons from us, then it certainly has the money to pay its bills in the United States," Byrd said.

The White House also is concerned about provisions requiring congressional approval for the sale or transfer of U.S. equipment left in the gulf area and any Iraqi equipment not destroyed.

plebiscite "resulted in a multiplicity of opinions ranging from absolute no to absolute yes." He blamed large anti-union votes in Moscow, Kiev and other large cities on the economic crisis and said Gorbachev should use the overall positive outcome as a mandate for more resolute action.

"The referendum lays the foundation for further democratic reforms in this country," Revenko said. "It creates a basis of popular support for perestroika and creates obstacles to the disintegration of this country."

Revenko acknowledged there were "infringements" and "irregularities" during the voting Sunday but he said most of them were in the six republics that boycotted the plebiscite to protest

Soviet rule, forcing the Kremlin to set up polling stations at army bases, Communist Party offices and other sites under Moscow's control.

The presidential aide said the violations did not significantly affect the result because the six states account for only 10 percent of the Soviet Union's population of 290 million.

Journalists and other observers at Moscow-run polling stations in the three Baltic republics, whose nationalist governments spurned the Soviet plebiscite, said some people were able to vote as many as five times by showing different pieces of identification at different sites.

Revenko conceded there were instances of multiple voting by presumably pro-Moscow citizens, but he said the six defiant states' boycotts prevented other pro-union people from voting. Popular Front nationalists in Moldavia, one of the six republics, reportedly blocked people from going to the Kremlin-run sites.

Orlov, the election commission chief, told deputies: "The referendum was held under very difficult conditions in some areas where entrances to polling stations were blocked, and some of the stations were even ravaged. Nevertheless, people displayed bravery there and participated in the plebiscite."

The Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania have held wildcard elections in the past six weeks in which their citizens voted overwhelmingly for independence.

said these are the hard fast rules," Parker said.

The committee also recommended that if a student trustee fails to maintain enrollment as a student, USG and GPSC can ask the board to declare the trustee position abandoned. But only USG and GPSC would have the ability to do this.

The committee questioned in February if student governments had the legal right to remove a student trustee if they did not meet the guidelines.

Board Legal Counsel C. Richard Grunly said the students and the board cannot remove a trustee. He recommended in a letter to Parker that neither student government or the board try to establish criteria for student trustee.

"You shouldn't try to bind a future USG to today's sentiments," Grunly said in the letter. "Leave it open and flexible."

But Richard Higginson, University Legal Counsel, said the intent of Welch's request was not to determine who had the ability to remove a student trustee.

"The intent is not to cover all possible grounds for removal, but to address only the potential scenario of a student trustee who was enrolled at the time of election but is not enrolled during the term of office," Higginson said in a letter to Parker.

The committee's proposal must go before USG and GPSC twice for the student governments before members vote.

Because of the times of the meetings, the new regulations laws will not be in effect by student trustee elections April 18, Parker speculated.

The committee was asked to set regulations by Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch and his associate Jean Paratore.

Paratore wrote several memoranda in the past year asking student governments to clarify or add to current trustee bylaws.

Carbondale and Jackson County a minimum of $75,000 a year in revenue from a 1-percent tax on the amount wagered if the city agrees to not charge an entry fee for the first five years of operation and rebate any revenue more than $75,000 to Fairmount Park or the developers of the project.

If the amount wagered exceeds $11 million the city and the county will receive 1 percent of the revenue.

In addition to the revenue generated from the amount wagered, Carbondale will receive taxes from activities associated with the parlor, including a 1-percent food and beverage tax and a 4-percent hotel/motel tax.

John Yow, the only councilman to oppose the incentives outlined in the proposal, said he still does not support bringing the parlor to Carbondale.

"Let's save those incentives for something the city will be proud of," he said.

Mayor Neil Dillard said Fairmount Park, like any other business, has a right to open a parlor in Carbondale.

Hill it was proposed because our vegetation analysis determined that to meet our future forest objectives for the area it would be the best way to manage the land."

Neal said the environmental decision was not a surprise to the Forest Service and that an alternate harvesting method called "group selection" might be used.

Group selection includes harvesting small clusters of trees throughout the forest sale area. Neal said group selection is not as unsightly as clear-cutting but it is also not as effective for managing land and vegetation.

In another decision issued by Marita, clear-cutting was temporarily suspended in the Hayes

Bay area of the forest in Pope County until further environmental studies can be completed.

The Sierra Club wants to permanently ban clear-cutting in Hayes Bay for ecological reasons. They have said two creeks that run through the timber sale create a watershed for special plants and wildlife.

Healthy eating trends inspire 'Meatout' day

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Rising concerns about cholesterol levels, fat intake and general health have made many Americans reconsider their eating habits.

Wednesday marks the first day of spring as well as the Great American Meatout, a day when thousands of Americans will try to cut meat out of their diets, even if for only one day.

Jane Benzel, local coordinator of GAM, set up a table last Saturday at the Neighborhood Coop Store to distribute information and take pledges from people promising not to eat meat.

Benzel said she gathered about 50 pledges and plans to form a GAM vegetarian club. The club will meet at 5 tonight at 402 S. University.

The purpose of GAM is to inform Americans about the impacts of factory farming practices on consumer health, environmental quality, animal welfare and food resources.

Factory farming uses high mechanization, high amounts of energy and little human participation, said Alex Hershaft, national coordinator for GAM.

Hershaft said factory farming can result in the deterioration of the food supply. For example, pesticides are used to preserve grains, and hormones are fed to the cattle to speed their growth.

The pesticides and the hormones show up in the meat resulting in a lower grade meat, he said.

Hershaft said environmental impacts include the clear cutting of trees to provide grazing land for the cattle and the pollution of lakes and streams by runoff from the crop and grazing lands.

Last, the impacts on animal welfare is extremely devastating, he said.

Hershaft said usually seven chickens are placed in a mesh wire cage. They must stand on top of each other and on the floor of the wire cage for their entire lives.

The mesh wire tears out their feathers and produces painful blood blisters, Hershaft said.

"If we're going to kill animals for food, we should at least give them a decent existence while they are still alive," Hershaft said.

Hershaft said concern about the impacts of animal agriculture has increased recently because of several important studies.

Cornell University conducted a study of 6,500 Chinese people. Its study concluded that a meatless diet prevents heart disease, strokes, cancer and other chronic diseases.

Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital found that of 88,000 nurses studied, those who ate meat were twice as likely to get colon cancer as those who did not eat meat.

Singing group stays in tune, in touch with spiritual roots

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

For the members of the Voices of Inspiration gospel choir, worship is a very vocal practice.

The public will have a chance to hear the Voices in a 7 p.m. performance March 23 at the Newman Catholic Student Center, 715 S. Washington.

The campus organization keeps musically oriented students in practice and in touch with their spiritual roots, said Joseph Cook Jr., choir director.

Gospel singing is one of the most powerful methods of praising God, and the opportunity to give praise is one reason people join the choir, said Cook, a senior in administration of justice from Washington, D.C.

"The attraction is the gospel itself, getting closer to the Lord," Cook said. "Then again, gospel music is just a part of a heritage for a lot of (members)."

The choir toured Washington, D.C. and West Virginia during spring break, he said.

With a backup band of Cook on the organ, Don Weaver on saxophone, Michael Maloney on keyboards and drums, and Felix Nelson and Rick Russo on percussion, the 40-member group enjoys touring and playing as often as possible, Cook said.

First formed in 1980, Voices of Inspiration was active for two years and was defunct from 1982 until 1986, when Cook helped restart the organization.

Singing with an organized choir helps strengthen a singer's voice and lets him or her develop a personal style, he said.

"It helps vocally, and we get to communicate with other colleges" while on tour, Cook said.

One of the high points of the Voices of Inspiration's 1990-91 year will be performing with the Mississippi Mass Choir, a nationally known group that has produced a number of recordings.

The joint performance will be Dec. 2 in Washington, D.C., Cook said.

New members usually have a background in gospel singing during childhood, said Angela Carthen, president of the choir organization.

"I've always enjoyed singing back home," said Carthen, a senior in aviation management from Chicago.

Carthen said her singing, which she took up at age eight, keeps her spiritual life balanced.

"It's definitely keeping me closer to God," she said. "That's the main thing."

The choir's easygoing rehearsal and touring schedule, which leaves time for homework and social activities, makes it easy to get involved, said Gary Rinder, public relations officer.

"I think the University choir is an excellent outlet for students who are looking for an organization that's a little less structured," Rinder said. "It's important they get involved with something they like doing."

In 1990, the choir took its act to the National College Gospel Choir Workshop in Atlanta, Ga., where it was graded by a judges' panel against competing vocal groups. The Voices received the second-highest rating possible, Rinder said.

Auditions for the choir are open to all students, and the more the merrier, said Rinder, a senior in public relations from Danville.

"We take as many singers as we can," he said. "If you have talent, we can use you someplace."

Admission for the Newman Center show is $3 in advance or $4 at the door.

Center to honor Salvadoran priest for crusade against government

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Civil wars for democracy in Latin American countries such as El Salvador and Nicaragua have produced heroes and martyrs.

The 11 a.m. Palm Sunday Mass at the Newman Catholic Student Center will honor a man who was both.

Monsignor Oscar Arnulfo Romero, the Salvadoran archbishop who crusaded for the rights of his country's impoverished workers, was gunned down at the altar while conducting mass in San Salvador March 24, 1980.

Romero called from the pulpit for an end to the exploitation of workers by the wealthy ruling classes and El Salvador's army. Organizations such as Amnesty International blame government-sponsored death squads for his assassination.

Rebels in El Salvador made Romero a symbol for their movement after his death, and his crusade was retold in Oliver Stone's motion picture "Salvador" and the biographical movie "Romero" starring Raul Julia.

Sister Kate Reid, director of the Newman Center, said the Central American countries may be the next focus of U.S. concern once the United Nations resolves the Persian Gulf situation.

"I think if tensions subside in the Persian Gulf, as they seem to be doing now, probably the focus will be heightened in relation to Latin America," Reid said.

Reid, a member of the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee who has visited Central America, said Congress will soon consider increasing funding to the Salvadoran government.

"We have, in the past, funded the government that supports the military," she said. "That's a big concern for me, that this pattern will continue."

Romero urged an end to the violence committed against citizens by their army.

The archbishop's last sermon, transcribed from a Salvadoran radio broadcast, condemned military violence against civilians and asked for a peaceful resolution of class conflicts.

"No soldier is obliged to obey an order contrary to the law of God," he said. "I implore you, I beg you, I order you in the name of God — stop the repression."

Bob Shearn, a Newman minister and organizer of the liturgy for Romero, said the archbishop knew the danger of his crusade.

"He came to see that his mission would require his life," Shearn said. "He received numerous death threats toward the end."

Shearn said Romero told the government forces threatening him, "You can kill me, but I will rise in the lives of the people."

"He will be remembered as one who lives within his people," Shearn said. "His work will continue, because it is the work of the Gospel."

Reid said Romero, the four American nuns killed in 1980 and the six Jesuit priests slain in 1988 — all reportedly killed by government forces — are symbols of the entire democracy movement in El Salvador.

"When (such leaders) are martyred, the whole world knows about it," she said. "They speak the truth, live the truth, and call for justice at great risk."

"I believe they represent the tens of thousands of unnamed people who have done the same thing," she said.

Study finds priests content celibate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An overwhelming majority of Roman Catholic priests ordained in the first half of the 1980s — the "thirtysomething" generation — are happy in their jobs and would enter the priesthood again, a study said Tuesday.

At the same time, however, the study pointed to some problems — including questions about the authority of church teachings on moral issues and the always thorny issue of celibacy — that the church hierarchy must confront.

According to the study, "A Survey of Priests Ordained Five to Nine Years," 80 percent of those ordained between the years 1980 and 1984 report they are satisfied with their work and would enter the priesthood again if they had to choose again.

And 90 percent reported they had no problems working with sisters or lay leaders in a parish.

"The overall findings are in sharp contrast with many reports of low morale among Catholic priests," said the Rev. Robert Wister, executive director of the seminary department of the National Catholic Educational Association. "The picture we've taken reveals individuals with high job satisfaction — a notable attribute for priests who soon will be moving into positions of leadership in the Catholic church."

International music group to hold interviews for potential members

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Students will have a chance to travel the world with an international musical group.

Representatives from Up With People, a two-hour musical show, will interview students at 7:30 p.m. March 20 in the Student Center Activity Room C.

Acceptance is based on a personal interview, and no audition is required.

Up With People accepts single high school graduates 17 to 25 years old, said Lisa Kieffer, Up With People promotional representative.

The purpose of the Up With People program is to encourage international understanding and to provide participants with leadership qualities.

Each year more than 650 people representing more than 20 countries travel the world with Up With People. In 1990, the group performed in several countries, including Norway, Germany and Finland.

The group's music includes songs from the '70s, songs against drugs and songs praising the environment.

Up With People recruiter Kiki Francke said it is not necessary that an applicant be able to sing or dance. All cast members go through a five-week training session.

Francke said she looks for people who are enthusiastic and interested in learning other cultures.

The tuition cost is $10,000 a year, and students earn eight college credit hours. Local civic clubs sponsor some of the students.

Folk singer to perform, raise social awareness

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Students can get a musical history lesson when folk singer and writer Charlie King plays Thursday.

Georgeann Hartzog, member of the Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, a co-sponsor of the event, said King raises social consciousness with music that is both historical and political.

He has sung in soup kitchens, homeless shelters and Vietnam peace parades.

"(King's music) is an uplifting experience," Hartzog said. "Everyone feels like we need his music right now (at the end of the Persian Gulf war)."

One of the songs King performs is "Trying to Find a Way Home," which is about Vietnam War veterans trying to find an end to their mental anguish after returning home from the war.

SPC Expressive Arts chairwoman Yvonne Hawk said King's music is similar to other folk artists' music.

"Folk artists provide social commentary by trying to make everything in the world better through music," she said.

King will perform at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Ballroom D.

Admission is $3 for adults and free for children under 12.

Schwarzkopf wins network battle for viewers in favor of ABC

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf stormed the ratings race last week and pushed ABC's "20/20" into the top 10 and the network itself into first place for the seventh time this season, it was reported Tuesday.

Barbara Walters' interview with the hero of the Persian Gulf war put "20/20" in third place for the week, giving ABC three of the top five shows — "Roseanne" and "America's Funniest Home Videos" also were in that elite group.

It was the first time "20/20" hit the top 10 this season — it's previous high was 19th place and that was when it followed a very popular Dolly Parton Christmas special.

The last time ABC won the weekly ratings race was the week ending Feb. 10, 1991, — and that week the network aired a Barbara Walters special.

Also giving ABC a boost was its Sunday movie, a repeat of the theatrical hit "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom."

Rogers' cancels show; ticket refunds available

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

Fans of Kenny Rogers will be saying, "You picked a fine time to leave us Kenny," Sunday.

Rogers' SIUC Arena concert has been indefinitely postponed. Michelle Suarez, publicity promotion specialist for the Arena, speculated that the cancellation was because of poor ticket sales, as compared to Rogers' other concerts.

"It will be a cooperative effort (between the Arena and concert promoters) to reschedule a date," Suarez said.

In a statement released by the Arena, Director Gary Drake said, "...the SIUC Arena has no control in this situation."

None of Kenny Rogers' three production agencies would comment on why the concert date was cancelled.

The Arena will refund tickets with the following stipulations:

- Refunds can be received through the SIUC Arena only in person or by mail;
- Cash refunds for tickets

Kenny Rogers

presented in person will be given through Friday, after which the refunds will be in the form of a University check;

■ If payment was made by a credit card, the account will be issued a credit, no cash will be given;

■ Refunds will be given for only a 90-day period and will include the refund price of all service fees;

■ No refunds for lost or stolen tickets will be given.

Ticket office hours are from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

'He Said, She Said' plot slow with stale, predictable jokes

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

"He Said, She Said" is a "When Harry Met Sally" story that has potential, but ends with the audience still waiting for a good part.

The movie shows scenes two ways—through the eyes of a man and a woman who do not get along. It has a slow plot with stale and predictable jokes.

Dan Hanson, played by Kevin Bacon, and Lorie Bryor, played by Elizabeth Perkins, meet as columnists on a Washington, D.C., newspaper and develop a love-hate relationship.

Lorie and Dan never related to the audience because the plot does not explore their personalities. The movie only brushed the surface of their characters.

The movie begins when Lorie and Dan are promised the same job.

Their boss decides that the person who writes the best column for the next day's paper will get the job.

Lorie and Dan discover they both have won, after their columns appear side-by-side in the newspaper.

The movie alternates between his and her point of view, when they become commentators on a television program titled, "He Said, She Said."

The plot was hard to follow because it moved back and forth from Dan's point of view to

He compares himself to a wolfman statue he keeps on his desk.

"When the full moon comes out, someone's going to get hurt," Dan said.

Lorie thinks Dan is a jerk. She rolls her eyes when he flatters the women in their office.

In one scene, an ex-girlfriend of Dan's shows up when Dan and Lorie are eating dinner.

Dan believes the girlfriend is just being friendly when she gently

Lorie's, as well as from past to present.

The only indication of moving to another point of view was a shot of a coffee cup imprinted with either "He Said" or "She Said." It was not clear at first that the coffee cup was the signal for a different point of view.

The movie begins with Dan's point of view.

Dan sees himself as a charmer with a lot of girlfriends.

touches Lorie on the shoulder while talking to Dan.

But Lorie thinks the girlfriend is vulgar.

The scene is supposed to be funny, but it is too predictable.

One of the few funny parts of the movie is when John Tesh of "Entertainment Tonight" tells his co-host that he is glad she does not drink coffee, after E.T. shows a clip of Lorie hitting Dan with a coffee cup.

Smart continues to deny involvement in murder

EXETER, N.H. (UPI) — Pamela Smart repeatedly sparred with a prosecutor Tuesday, rejecting assertions she was involved with her teen-lover in the murder of her husband.

Under cross-examination for a second day, Smart testified that her admission on a secretly recorded conversation that she knew about the murder ahead of time was "a fabrication" aimed at finding out more about the case.

Last week the jury listened to a series of tapes of secretly recorded conversations between Smart and Cecelia Pierce, 16, her student intern at Winnacunnet High School.

The tapes were made in June and July, after the three teens had been arrested and investigators had begun to suspect Smart of involvement in the murder.

On those tapes, Smart was heard making statements that apparently showed that she had knowledge of a previous attempt on Gregory Smart's life.

But on the witness stand, Smart said she made the statements intentionally because she believed that Pierce was involved in the murder and she wanted to find out what she knew.

"I told (Cecelia) that I knew about it beforehand, and that was a total fabrication," Smart said.

Garden growing offers wide range of health benefits

To Your Health

By Kate Zager
Wellness Center

How can students save money, improve the quality of their diets, manage stress, get some exercise, air and sunlight and maybe even lose some weight? No, it's not a free trip to an expensive health spa. It's growing a backyard garden.

The 29 million gardeners in America who will take up hoe and rake this spring know they can have fresher produce, less expensively than their grocers can provide. Vegetables eaten at the peak of ripeness have significantly more nutritional value than those sitting unrefrigerated for even one day.

When gardening space is limited, raised beds and pots can provide bountiful harvests with a minimum amount of daily care. Cucumbers, beans and other vine vegetables can be grown on trellises and fences. Tomatoes, peppers and squash grow prolifically in our climate and can be grown on decks or even in residence hall rooms.

If a garden is simply impossible, seeking out a local farmer's market is the next best alternative. Local growers in Carbondale sell fruits of their labors every Saturday morning from May through October at the Carbondale Farmer's Market.

Local extension services and other avid gardeners can help the novice gardener get started with tips on the best vegetable to grow and how to build the soil. Gardening is a hobby that can provide a lifetime of fun.

Lotto fever spreads in Carbondale

By Jennifer Kulier
Staff Writer

Illinois has Lotto fever, and Carbondale is no exception, said area ticket merchants Tuesday.

The Illinois Lottery jackpot now stands at $52 million, making it the second largest jackpot in state history. The $69.9 million prize in April 1989 was the only jackpot that was larger, said Lottery Director Desiree Rogers.

The drawing for the $52 million will be held on Wednesday night.

"Lotto fever is in full force because the high jackpot," Rogers said.

Two Carbondale liquor stores that sell tickets have reported higher Lotto ticket sales than usual.

Greg Faires, manager of Warehouse Liquor Mart, 829 E. Main, said the store has reported an increase in Lotto ticket sales of 15 to 20 percent.

"Just about every customer who comes in to buy liquor wants a ticket," said Faires.

The busiest time for ticket sales is in the evenings, when people get off work. During evenings the lines for Lottery tickets get rather long, but ticket dispensing machines keep the lines moving, he said.

Michael Lyons, employee at Warehouse Liquor Mart, said different people than regular customers are buying tickets.

"It seems like a lot more customers than usual--instead of putting their change back into their pockets--are saying 'give me a ticket,'" said Lyons.

ABC Liquor Mart, 109 N. Washington, also has reported an increase in ticket sales, but "nothing too big," said store employee Sean Covert.

United Press International contributed to this report.

ROTC students to test durability in field training

By Kylie Robertson
Staff Writer

Friday and Saturday will be a tiring time for 70 army ROTC students on a field training exercise in the wilderness.

Capt. William Hinrichs, of the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps at SIUC, said the exercise is a simulated combat, and will be physically demanding for all participating.

Students will have to be alert for 32 hours, he said.

Although the students will be stationary for a time to sleep, security shifts will have to be met because the group will be behind enemy lines, he said.

The exercise will be at the University-owned Touch of Nature reserve near Giant City.

"The group will be working on individual movement techniques and will learn how to walk, sit, sleep and eat behind enemy lines," Hinrichs said.

Students will carry 60 to 70 pound rucksacks containing bedding, tent and clothing, he said.

"This may be fine for healthy males weighing 120 pounds, but some of the females who barely weigh 90 pounds will have some difficulty," he said.

Cadet 1st Lt. Stephen Roos said it may be "a pain in the neck," but it is necessary to transport belongings.

"The girls must have more trouble than us but they don't complain," Roos said. "Even when we offer some help they don't take it."

Firecrackers will be used in the exercise to simulate the noise and disruption experienced in real combat, Hinrichs said. No real ammunition will be used.

"The exercise will give the students a chance to apply what they learn in the classroom to actual maneuvers and help them complete graduation," he said.

"It gives us fantastic training. We learn to work at high speed and conduct ambushes and defense positions," Roos said.

The field training will help students prepare for their advanced camp that will be in June at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Kids feel important with allowance

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey shows that kids accumulate about the same amount of money every week, but the ones with allowances like it best because it makes them feel more independent.

The nationwide poll of 700 kids, aged 9 to 14, by the magazine, Zillions: Consumer Reports for Kids, showed that about half the youths answering a questionnaire received a regular allowance.

The average allowance was $3 for 9- and 10-year-olds, and $5 for 11-, 12-, 13- and 14-year-olds with more added through odd jobs, the survey reported.

Kids without allowances get cash from parents through handouts or pay for odd jobs around home, working for other people or as gifts.

Both groups ended up with about the same amount of money every week — $5 for 9- and 10-year-olds, $10 for 11- and 12-year-olds, and $15 for 13- and 14-year-olds.

The survey showed, however, that most kids hated to ask for money.

"When I didn't have an allowance, if I wanted to do something or buy something, I had to ask Mom," said one girl. "I didn't feel comfortable doing that. What I did was always her decision."

Brave birds

Swallows migrate despite rain, cold

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — Unruffled by a rare rain and unseasonal chill, the swallows returned Tuesday to the San Juan Capistrano Mission, making good on a centuries-old custom.

The Spanish mission bells chimed a welcome at 8:07 a.m. as the birds appeared over the courtyard.

The first of the migratory fork-tailed birds were spotted Monday, scouting the way for the rest at the end of their annual journey that begins a hemisphere away in Goya, Argentina.

It was the first time since 1962 that the returning swallows have braved wet weather to follow their instincts in the ritual that coincides every year with the feast day of St. Joseph.

Mission volunteer Priscilla Sleight said the birds have been late only once during the 1930s, when they were delayed by a storm in Mexico.

Some 2,000 swallow-watchers were gathered for the arrival and the ringing of the mission bells by Paul Arbisio, the 97-year-old groundskeeper who has performed the duty ever since he was a boy.

"He rang longer than usual," Sleight said. "It went on for about four minutes. I think he was especially happy."

Another part of the festivities featured composer Leon Rene singing his renowned composition, "When the Swallows Come Back to Capistrano."

Tuesday's celebration begins a month of events commemorating the swallows' arrival, culminating with this weekend's Swallows Day Parade, one of the largest non-motorized parades in the United States, and the San Juan Rodeo.

The tradition of the returning swallows began in 1776, the year the mission was completed under the auspices of Franciscan Friar Junipero Serra, who enlisted the local Juaneno Indians to help construct a church, school and dormitory in the name of St. John.

Though procedures have begun that could lead to Serra's sainthood, he was a controversial figure in California history. Some historians say the Indians he supervised in the building of 21 missions up and down the territory were coerced into converting to Catholicism.

Atlantis crew excited about first 1991 launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle Atlantis' crew reviewed emergency launch pad escape procedures Tuesday during the first day of a two-day practice countdown to clear the way for blastoff April 5 on the year's first shuttle flight.

"We're getting excited," said shuttle skipper Steven Nagel. "The Atlantis is looking great, it's ready to go."

The mock countdown, a traditional milestone in a shuttle's ground processing, began at 8 a.m. EST. The test was scheduled to end Wednesday morning with the simulated ignition and shutdown of Atlantis' three main engines.

The ship's five-member crew — Nagel, 44, co-pilot Kenneth Cameron, 41, Linda Godwin, 38, Jerry Poss, 43, and Jay Apt, 41 — planned to don spacesuits and strap in aboard Atlantis Wednesday for the final hours of the dress-rehearsal.

The five shuttle fliers spent the day Tuesday reviewing emergency escape procedures at launch pad 39B where Atlantis is being readied for takeoff. They also inspected the shuttle's payload, the $617 million Gamma Ray Observatory.

If all goes well, Atlantis will blast off at 9:18 a.m. EST on April 5 to kick off a five-day mission.

Jackson says farewell to baseball teammates

HAINES CITY, Fla. (UPI) — Bo Jackson, slowly maneuvering around the clubhouse on crutches, Tuesday made a tearful goodbye to his Kansas Royals teammates and vowed to return to the big leagues.

"My first priority is to spend the time with my family that I haven't done," he said at his crowded locker-room cubicle. "The second is rehabbing religiously. And the third is getting back on the playing field. Who knows, hopefully for somebody in the American League."

Jackson was released by the Royals Monday after the team decided he was unable to play baseball this season because of a severe hip injury he suffered Jan. 13 playing pro football for the Los Angeles Raiders.

The two-sport star cleaned out his spring-training locker, left checks with the clubhouse attendants and said he would be back at Royals Stadium, but as an opposing player.

"I've had a relationship with the guys here for the past 4 1/2 years," Jackson said. "I probably have a better relationship with most of the guys on this team than I do with my own brothers and sisters."

When, or if, he returns to baseball, Jackson will be with another team. Tuesday, teams could begin claiming Jackson on waivers. The club with the worst record last year in the American League (the New York Yankees) gets the first chance to claim him for $1.

The rest of the AL teams follow in reverse order of finish. If he clears the league, the process is repeated in the National League. The waiver period ends Friday at 1 p.m. EST.

"At this point, it's too early to make a decision," Yankees spokesman Jeff Idleson said from Fort Lauderdale. "You have to look at all the information available, the medical reports. We'll take the steps to look into that."

A club that claims Jackson and places him on the Opening Day roster must pay his 1991 salary of $2.375 million. Ordinarily, a team pays the full salary of an injured player. However, the Royals say they will pay only one-sixth of his salary ($395,833) because Jackson injured himself playing pro football.

The Major League Baseball

Players Association is studying the matter.

The 28-year-old outfielder and running back has received support from his two other employers—the Raiders and the Nike shoe company, whose commercials have made him one of the country's most celebrated athletes.

The phone hasn't stopped ringing at the Royals complex with well-wishers. Jackson said Raiders owner Al Davis has called "more than anyone."

Royals teammate George Brett said he was "buckled" by the team's decision, although Jackson said he saw the move coming.

"I'm not saying I had a premonition, but the bug was in the air and I kind of felt it and I kind of played it off to myself and said,

"No, it's not going to happen," he said. "So when it did happen, I wasn't floored or stunned. That is that. I've got to go on with my life."

Dr. Steve Joyce, the Royals team physician, advised Jackson not to play baseball this season. Joyce diagnosed Jackson's injury as avascular necrosis, a condition marked by restricted blood flow to the bone.

Dr. Jim Andrews, Jackson's orthopedic surgeon in Birmingham, Ala., examined Jackson Monday and recommended no baseball or football this year. He offered no specific diagnosis, but was more upbeat than Joyce concerning Jackson's baseball career. Andrews said the former Heisman Trophy winner might be wise to give up football.
